DICK JOSE AT THE PAVILION THIS EVENING

POPULAR SINGER WILL ENTER-TAIN A CROWDED HOUSE IN THIS CITY.

America's great contra-tenor, whom you all know, Mr. Richard J.
Jose, is coming. He will be at the Pavilion theater tonight together with his special selected company in the screaming comedy, "Jane." Authors have striven for years to create a vehicle that would in a measure compare with this great Madison Square success, but with indifferent results. The charm surrounding "Jane" has doubtless been derived through the congruity of its situation and the marked cleanliness of its text. Spontaneous humor follows naturally that is neither forced or inconsistent. The auditor finds sufficient laughter in the first act, and this is heightened to loud guf-faw as the complications become the more entangled. For the careful interpretation of this bill, Mr. Jose has taken particular pains in the selection of a cast that is specially suited to the respective roles of this great mirth maker.

Mr. Jose's voice will be heard in a number of the old songs that assisted in making his reputation. His clear resonant tones will be remembered by the thousands who heard him last year and pronounced it a voice of the decades. All popular ballads will be given on demand, in conjunction with a repertoire of new ones. A special feature which Mr.
Jose has added this year will be appreciated by a noted harpist. This talented musician has become a master of the difficult instrument and will display her skill through a number of special selections.

This company will doubtless attract a large audience as there is already a large demand for reservations and those wishing choice locations should place them early today.

JURY DISAGREES IN LEGAL TANGLE

At noon Saturday the long, hard fought suit of the Goldfield law firm of Thayer and Steele against the Florence Mining company was submitted to the jury. The trial of the case commenced several days ago before Judge Van Fleet in the federal court Attorney Carney, of the firm of Detch and Carney, appearing for the plaintiffs, and John S. Macbeth, for the defendant company.

It seems that the Little Florence company and the Florence Goldfield company had had some litigation as to the right of the former to mine ore on a certain piece of ground. T.

G. Lockhart, one of the chief owners of the Florence Goldfield company, and E. S. Van Dyck, its attorney and secretary, therefore went to Virginia

City to secure an injunction against the Little Florence company's further working upon the property. The injunction was denied by the court.

These two officers of the company then returned to Goldfield, where they consulted Mr. Steele, one of the plaintiffs in this action, and he agreed to go to Dayton, where a suit was to be instituted in the district court against the Little Florence company for a fee of $500. In the meantime an agreement was made between the two companies which made this proposed trip to Dayton unnecessary. This agreement, which involved the large sum of between $177,000 and $178,000 and which was most satisfactory to the Florence Goldfield company, the plaintiffs claim could not have been brought about without the aid of Mr. Steele.

Owing to the large sum of money involved the plaintiffs claim that a fee of $10,000 is reasonable and are therefore suing for the balance of $9,500, the $500 fee having already been paid. The defendants, however, deny the importance of Mr.

Steele in the drawing up of this agreement and therefore refuse to pay the larger fee.

At 9 o'clock last night the jury returned to the court room and reported that there was no possibility of their arriving at a verdict, and were therefore discharged from further consideration of the case.—Carson

ANOTHER LOST MINE HAS BEEN FOUND

James W. Bailey and J. R. Cunningham, two old California prospectors, have discovered what they believe to be a long-lost Spanish gold mine, between Crowder's ranch and the head of the waters of Lytle Creek in Cajon Pass. According to the finders, this old property was abandoned at the close of the Mexican war.
While searching for an iron ledge thought to exist on Crowder's ranch, Bailey explored all the surrounding country, accompanied by Cunningham, in charge of the ranch at this time, and came across a patchwork piece of rock wall or ledge, apparently of human handiwork. Many legends of lost mines and buried treasure cluster about the hills on the ranch; remembering these the two men investigated the pile of rock and discovered it to be an old Spanish dwelling. An oven, two Spanish bowls, the hip bone of a human body and relics of days when California was in its infancy were found.
